

Xiaomi New TV launched

Written by Editor

Friday, 17 July 2015 01:04 - Last Updated Friday, 17 July 2015 01:13

Xiaomi very recently teased that they were launching something super slim , releasing teaser images about this new device that looked a lot like a flatscreen TV. With that the super sleek Mi TV 2S is now official, which is claimed to be as thin as their smartphone which was launched last year. The TV is to feature 4K support as well as a unique super compact plughead which is a first for smart TVs.

Mi 4

The Mi TV 2S is the updated version of the 2nd gen Mi TV , with the smart TV coming in a variety of sizes and colour options we don't normally see on a display, with the aluminium frame to sport either pink, blue, lime, gold or silver colour configurations to spiffy up your living room. This time it looks like the display will only be available in one 48 inch configuration, but it will feature lossless 4K video support as well.

More Here