

The LG V30 flagship phablet will be revealed end of this month on the eve of IFA 2017. We've seen several leaks before and now we get to see all angles with this new leak from @evleaks.

From this official looking press render, the LG V30 looks very similar to a Galaxy S8 or even the Note8. You get a tall 18:9 display which dominates the front and it is noticeably curved slightly around the edges where it meets the metal frame. The similarity to the Galaxy S8 doesn't stop there as the metal frame also gets a shiny glossy finish.

The LG V30 is the most powerful smartphone you can buy right now The LG V30 is the most powerful smartphone you can buy right now

